COHRESPONDENCE.

J. S. B., New York.—Please note the arrival of your "may fancy simplicity." M. C. L. Ansonia, Conn.—Tour solution came too late for last Sunday.

D. P. B., Concord, Mass., sends the following query: "the man and where was the game of chees invented, or does history fail to throw any light on the matter? A ray from the Sunday Sus will decide controversy. Please give it to us and oblice D. P. R."

Although all agree that the game of chess was invented in the East, nothing certain is known about it, as history indeed fails to give a clue. THE LEIPSIC CHESS CONGRESS.

Furniture and Carpets, at any railroad station within 100 miles of Brooklyn. goods of the most reliable quality, and distribute them at the lowest consistent prices-to bring our customers as near the first cost of production as possible, by doing away with the profits of intermediate dealers. This we have done through our superior facilities at home and abroad. From this policy we have never swerved nor wavered, and those who deal with us realize that, as we added each new department, they have been enabled to buy the goods lower than ever before, because our first aim has been to get the prices down to a legitimate basis, and the assortments larger and more complete than any other. Our store is three hundred and sixty-five times better than it was a year ago; every day has been devoted to improving our stocks, our system, and our service, and every day will continue to be devoted to improving always fully sustained by the goods shown—a fact easily verified by investigating those offered to-day.
